e-Nelson Holiday Edition

What a Racket!

The world of visual dipping cabinets is governed by the skirt and the racking system. Every manufacturer had/has their own, including us. We're thrilled to announce a new, and now available, hardware system for racking 3 gal ice cream tubs in our expanded line of visual dipping cabinets. While our screw holes line up for use with existing hardware from other producers, we can now make and offer our own. What was formerly called a can skirt, is now a 2- can topper to keep the clean look and a rack shelf below that will grip the tub to keep it from spinning. The best news, no need to look any further than CNMC for All your ice cream dipping needs.

e-DITORIAL

It's December, now. The Thanksgiving Holiday weekend is over. We worked hard, cleaning, preparing and entertaining family all weekend. Besides that we took time out to stand in the receiving line at the funeral home to express our condolences to a family who lost their 19 year old daughter. Nothing I had to endure would compare to the weight on their hearts as they cleaned her dorm room. Nor does it come anywhere close the aching heart of her best friend who shares the dorm room at Kent State, as well as their young lives, always joined at the hip since age 6. Hope weighing against despair, I choose hope. It's Monday and I knew it would come, just like Spring will come.

As I drove the 7.9 miles along the Lake shore to work today, I spied 3 bald eagles. I don't take this for granted. Just like spring, this will come, too. They mate in November. I'm assuming the deed is done by now as they roost as pairs on the branches that reach out over the water looking for their fishy meals. We'll see them often now that the leaves are off the trees. Even they know, as they skies get dark earlier, and the cold winds blow in from the north off the lake and as the snow clouds loom over head, that spring will come. Spring with the eaglets and the flowers and the ice cream, will come again for most of us.

Enjoy the Holidays. Love the ones you're with. Miss those with whom you cannot share a moment. Pray for peace. Share a kind word. Give a hug. Wish for more hope and less despair. These are the real gifts of the season.
